Jam packed schedule planned for Summer Games

• Sporting and cultural events fill weekend

by Janice Harrington
Review Editor

Organizers have put together a jam packed schedule of events for the upcoming Big Country Summer Games to be held in Didsbury on June 16, 17, 18.

With 500 to 600 participants and a least 100 spectators expected, organizers have filled the weekend with enough things to see and do to make sure everyone is satisfied.

The Games will officially kick off Friday, June 16 with the beginning of the torch relay run through out town. Sixteen runners will carry the torch from Rosebud Valley Campground to the torch lighting ceremony planned in the Memorial Complex.

The 5-0 Singers will precede the opening ceremonies with an hour of entertainment starting at 6pm in the Memorial Complex. The opening ceremonies will begin at 7pm with the torch lighting, greetings from dignitaries, the bee dance with Didsbury's mascot Didsbee and choreographed grade four students and, the highlight, remarks from the special guest speaker, Olympic bronze medalist swimmer Tom Ponting.

Also planned for Friday night is a three act play produced by Theatre Didsbury, entitled Wally's Cafe. Tickets for the show are $5 and are going fast. The show starts at 8:30 pm.

An art show highlighting some of Didsbury's talent and other talent from artists within the sport's council zone will also begin on Friday night and run through the weekend. The show will be on display at Eldon Foote Hall.

Games Manager Laura Silbernagel said one of the unique attractions of Friday night is the teen entertainment planned for games participants and friends at the curling rink starting at 8:30pm. A line up of day and Sunday and, to top the evening off, a variety night will activities was still being planned.

Saturday will be an especially jam packed day for visitors and participants. Besides sporting events, which include basketball, lawn bowling, equestrian playoffs, fastball, track and field and tennis, the day will also be filled with various other activities.

To kick off the day, the Didsbury Lions Club will host a pancake breakfast starting at 7am at the arena. At 9 am, the craft show and sale will open at the curling rink. Children's entertainment will be offered, author readings at the library will take place as will historical tours of Didsbury, beginning at the museum at 2pm. A 37-year-old Olds man has been charged with nine counts of sex related offenses involving young girls.

Arnold Kim Schuh was charged by Olds RCMP after an investigation held over the weekend. The alleged victims are all young girls aged 4 to 11-years-old.

Schuh has been charged with five counts of sexual interference for incidents in 1993, 1994 and 1995, two counts of sexual assault and two counts of corrupting morals related to incidents in 1995. RCMP are continuing to investigate.

Schuh is currently being held in custody and will make his first appearance in court on Wednesday in Didsbury.

Law breaking allegations levelled at town council

by Janice Harrington
Review Editor

Allegations of contraventions of the Municipal Government Act and the Environmental Protection Act have been levelled at town council by its former Chief Administrative Officer.

In a letter to the editor which was later withdrawn, former CAO Mike Storey alleged that council had contravened the MGA on five separate occasions and the EPA once.

Storey said the first contravention occurred on March 30 when town council held a special meeting, passing two resolutions regarding the decision to rescind the appointments of both the CAO and the Assistant Administrator. Storey alleged that since no CAO was in attendance and the minutes were not recorded, the meeting was illegal, making the resolutions illegal.

"Although my appointment was subsequently rescinded by bylaw at a meeting held April 4, 1995, it is evident that the Assistant Administrator's termination effective March 31, 1995 is invalid and this council may owe her a further amount of wages and benefits until a legal termination resolution is passed in a duly constituted meeting," Storey said in the letter.

But Didsbury's current acting CAO Doug Plamping said the min-

Mother fights for separate IOP exams

by Janice Harrington
Review Editor

In an effort to have her daughter and other students exempted from writing provincial standardized achievement tests for grade nine, an Olds mother made an impassioned plea to the school board last week.

But Joyce Quaife was told her daughter could not be exempted from the exams and would receive a zero on her marks if she did not write, despite the sympathy of the school board and its senior administration.

School Superintendent Dr. Altha Neilson said she understood why Quaife's daughter and others would want to be exempted but said Alberta Education regulations did not allow it.

"The position of Alberta Education is that unless the student will be totally traumatized by writing the exam or is incapable of writing the exam, they should because even if they only get one point, that is better than a zero," Neilson said.

Quaife, who represented a group of six parents who have been fighting to have their children exempted since March, said students enrolled in the Integrated Occupation Program in Olds, should not write the departmental exam because IOP students follow a different curriculum than standard grade nine classes. The exam tests students across the province on the standard curriculum. Quaife said writing the exam will only cause a lack of self esteem and stress.

The school board agreed testing IOP students on regular curriculum was unfair and voted unanimously

utes of the meeting Storey called illegal do not contravene the MGA because, as acting administrator hired after the meeting, he read the minutes and later signed them.

Storey also alleged that council contravened the MGA on May 16, 1995 when they passed a resolution to set penalties for late tax payment. Storey said Section 344 of the MGA states that penalties must be imposed by bylaw. Since Bylaw 95-9 was enacted by this council in March of this year already establishing penalties, the resolution is invalid.

Plamping recognized the resolution is invalid until a bylaw is passed, but he said the administration is currently busy preparing one.

"We just need to have it in place before July 1," he said.

As for Storey's allegation that council was trying to hide the amount of money Plamping is being paid, Plamping said his contract amount does not have to be recorded in the resolution since he was not hired as staff.

"Because I am not an employee and I am working as a consultant on a contract basis, my compensation does not need to be disclosed (in the resolution set by council), Plamping said. "But the amount is a matter of public record and anyone who comes to the town office has the right to see it."

But Storey said no resolution approving the contract with Plamping's company was recorded.

As for the allegation that council contravened the Environmental Protection Act, Storey said he feels this came about when council gave the go ahead to install a water main and sanitary sewer main on 18th Street south of 15th Avenue. Storey said council, by law, was supposed to submit a written application for the project, along with a diagram, for approval to Alberta Environmental Protection.

"Mr. A Kennedy, this area's representative for Environment, confirmed to me on or about May 18, 1995 that the town had not filed any application for main installation," Storey said in his letter.

But Plamping said further approval of the project was not necessary because the entire residential project for installation of water and sewer service had already been approved years before.

"The installation of service for the lots (in Anderson Court) had already been approved," Plamping said. "We don't need to go back for approval every time we want to add on."

But while Plamping did not feel any contraventions of provincial law had occurred in Storey's other allegations, he did admit a breach did occur when Rod Collinge did not state a conflict of interest when council voted to appoint his mother-in-law as Elections Returning Officer on April 4.

Storey said because Enid Gardener will be paid for her work, a position she has held many times in the past, Collinge's inclusion in the discussion of the appointment and his vote on the matter contravened Section 172(1) of the MGA which states that a councillor must abstain from discussing or voting on any issue which he knows will have a pecuniary benefit to a member of his family.

While Collinge could not be reached for comment, Plamping said the act does allow for errors in these cases.

"It has to be established that the councillor deliberately sat there knowing the issue would financially benefit a member of his family," he said. "It could also be argued that here really wasn't any pecuniary interest since we are talking about an ($800) honorarium versus a salary. The court would have to decide that."

Besides bringing these alleged breaches to the public's attention, Storey said he was unsure what he intended to do about them. Storey said the provincial government will not take any action on the breaches, a member of the public must file suit. He was unsure if he would take that step.

Town council notes

by Janice Harrington
Review Editor

Town council formally adopted the recently developed economic development strategy, opening the door for policies and by-laws to be created to help along their seven percent growth plan.

After consulting with the public on the plan, which outlines strategies for increasing Didsbury's population by seven percent, only one change was made to the proposal before it was adopted.

Acting CAO Doug Plamping said that change was in the practise of charging developers property taxes for partially constructed projects. After hearing from developers who said the practise penalized them because they could make no income on an unfinished project, the town decided to discontinue the practise.

Plamping said initial policies and by-laws should be drafted and presented to town council sometime this month.

Town council has decided to get out of the plumbing business.

After hearing concerns that town public works employees were being pulled off important projects to deal with residents backed up sewer lines, council voted to end its sewer cleaning service unless plumbers are not available, if the plumber can't clear the blockage or if it is an emergency.

Operational services director

Hans Janssen said his staff have been interrupted in the past by home owners who call for sewer service simply because the plumber can't respond quickly enough. The new policy also states that correction sewer line blockages caused in the town's sewer line will be reimbursed by the town.

Acting CAO Doug Plamping said another reason town staff should stay off residential property is for insurance purposes. He said the Municipal Government Act allows for the town's liability in sewage back up cases, but said the insurance is void if a town staff member steps on private property.

Community members showed no interest in researching council remuneration deals, so the town's administration has been charged to look into the matter.

At the council's last meeting in May, council decided to ask the public to form a committee looking into how much council gets paid by comparing it to other jurisdictions. But advertising the chance brought no takers.

But instead of dropping the matter, council asked town administration to compare rates and prepare a report.

Any changes to council remuneration won't take effect until after the next election.

A Didsbury couple has been hired to take over the new position of campground residents for this year.

Sherry and Lajos Gy-Varga were chosen from among several candidates to fill the position which allows them live at the Rosebud Valley Campground and take care of maintenance and other duties during the camping season.

Taunts by Sundre men caused Barkley Wayne Carrier, 19, to react "rather badly" according to his legal counsel, court was told on June 7. Carrier was charged with assault when he reacted to mockery of his name outside the Sundre Burger Baron on November 17, 1994. Carrier, who has no prior record, sustained serious injuries when a third youth interceded in the initial altercation involving two males. The incident was triggered when two teenaged boys began calling out his first name and making "barking" noises. Carrier's lawyer said a sentence in this case would not be viable as a deterrent as he considered the incident to be "out of character" for his client. A request for an absolute discharge was denied. Carrier was instead given a three month probation order and ordered to carry out 15 hours of community service.

Larry Leonard, 40, violated probation orders to keep the peace and remain on good behaviour when he assaulted his wife, who was not seriously injured, on February 23, 1995. A lengthy history of alcohol related offences, in addition to driving offences and a 1980 assault on a police officer generated a request for a "short, sharp sentence" by the crown prosecutor who reiterated the gravity of spousal abuse. Probation officer Bruce Herzog suggested that further probation might be in order as the accused had completed an alcohol treatment program, obtained steady employment and had completely ceased imbibing alcohol since the assault occurred. "I'm going to give you a break and I hope you won't abuse it," the judge said, sentencing the accused to a 60 day term of incarceration to be served on week ends, a further 18 month period of probation, and a $200 fine.

OPINIONS / EDITORIAL

Here we go

Janice Harrington

They have been fairly quiet about it, but the amount of preparation work that has gone into the planning of the Big Country Summer Games to be held in Didsbury this weekend has been phenomenal.

Hours and hours of volunteer laboring, cajoling and planning has been put in by a dedicated few in order to make this event come together in a way which will make Didsbury shine. We can be sure it will.

It is amazing to me that such a small group has been able to jump in at the last minute (remember, Didsbury was only granted the games in February) and put together the calibre and depth of event that has been planned. Didsbury will be rocking this weekend.

An estimated 2000 extra people, which will nearly double Didsbury's population is expected for the event. Organizers have planned very carefully to ensure none of them are bored a minute of their visit.

Of course the celebration is not limited to those who are visiting to either participate or watch the games. Local involvement will be necessary to ensure everyone has a good time. And there are certainly enough events planned to make sure we do.

To appreciate the amount of work that has gone into this event, you just have to look at the games brochure which was stuffed into this week's newspaper. From dawn until dusk, there will be cultural events to please everyone and enough sports to satisfy even the most ardent fan. And food, we can't forget the food (my favorite part) - the organizers have made sure there will be enough offering to make sure no one goes hungry either.

It is events like these, accomplished with the blood, sweat and tears of just a few, which makes towns like ours have something to be proud of. So just make sure when you are enjoying an event, shake the hand of a volunteer near you and say thanks for helping make Didsbury viable.

Quote of the week

"With both the qualifying events and the host class events, The Aquajets have the potential to attract 200 swimmers here for the games."

Alberta Sport, Recreation, Parks and Wildlife Foundation zone director Dave Turnbull talking about the kind of numbers Didsbury could expect over the weekend in one event alone.

by The Didsbury Chamber of Commerce

The Didsbury Chamber of Commerce would like to take this opportunity to catch you up on the past year.

Having 50 members this year, enthusiasm was never at a lack. Besides the Chamber's own yearly promotions (Trade Show, Show & Shine and Midnight Madness), we supported the following events/groups: Pee Wee Hockey Provincial Tournament, Ruralize '95 Conference, Big Country Summer Games, DIG Canada Day Celebrations, 5-0 Singers, Didsbury High School, Christmas Cheque Program and the Farmers' Bonspiel.

Representatives from the Didsbury Tourism & Economic Development Board, the Business Revitalization Board, the Didsbury Interagency Group and the David Thompson Tourist Council, along with short-term committees formed through the year, keep the Chamber "in touch" with our community.

The "Member's Spotlight" challenged our members in "selling" themselves & their product/service and delighted those members who sat back and listened. There were also monthly guest speakers which gave a bright, new appeal to the meetings. Topics presented ranged from insurance, environment, tourism, politics and crime.

Recovering from a serious accident, Linda Vernon-Third is coming back strong and will be staying on as the Chamber's President for the coming term. Lora Lowther as secretary and Brenda Flemming as treasurer have made significant contributions to our organization.

The Chamber holds its meetings at the 5-0 Club. We have been impressed with the Club's renovations and expansion and the generous, delicious meals supplied by the Krebs.

The Trade Show Committee (Claude & Margaret Baril, Grant & Brenda Hemming, Duke & Maxine Moreau, Vern Good and Aron Klassen) deserve a big round of applause as well as the couple (Harley & Wendy Seymour) dedicated to the Show & Shine event. They, and many others, including the people of this community, have helped us spend another successful year.

Tax break necessary

Dear Editor:

I have recently become one of those lucky fathers who receives a "reward" from the taxman because I do not have custody of my children. This is not because I didn't want them, but because the courts most commonly award custody to the mothers. Maybe you can explain further why I should feel "rewarded" so that I may enjoy my situation to the fullest.

The courts arrived at my payment amount by subtracting my monthly expenses from my take home pay (including the tax "reward") and awarding the remainder to the children's mother. Interestingly enough, immediately upon receiving confirmation of her child-support payments, my ex-wife bought herself a brand new, fully loaded car. It's good to know I'm helping my kids ride in style.

My lawyer advised that most child-support issues settled in court are arrived at through this process. If I didn't receive this tax break, my take home pay would have been less and therefore my support payments would also have been less. It doesn't take a mathematician to figure out that taxed or not, my ex-wife would ultimately be receiving the same amount. I have no qualms about paying child-support, but should the courts disallow the tax break, I along with millions of other lucky dads will be forced to go to court to have the payments lowered. Again the only winners will be the lawyers.

You imply that the laws are unfair to tax the income of single mothers, however, I assume that you have no problem taxing the income of working mothers who are still married? I already pay taxes on my income and the child-support I pay to my ex-wife is part of her income and should be taxed as such.

Contrary to your opinion, I enjoy seeing my boys and endure a 12 hour drive every third week-end to do so. Maybe I can use the $150 a month "reward" towards the replacement vehicle I will need when I mile-out the old one travelling the 30,000 km a year in order to see my children.

Support town council's appeal

Dear Editor:

I urge the citizens of Didsbury to support our Town Council in their appeal against the vicious increase in the value of residential land in the town (from $13.86 million to $22.44 million) by the provincial government. For many of us, especially those in older homes, this huge increase has resulted in an unjustifiable and totally unacceptable rise in taxes - my own have almost doubled! Many on fixed incomes or who are unemployed, as well as those in starter homes and on low incomes, just do not have such monies. To this end, I have launched a petition. The more signatures there are, the stronger will be the council's hand. So sign up now at the library, golf club, Contemporary Graphics or my house. Extra help can be given to strengthen the council's appeal by writing direct and expressing your concern to: Alberta Provincial Government, Department of Municipal Affairs, 424 Legislature Building, Edmonton T5T 2B6.

Reaching Out to Children

$50 Million Available for Early Intervention Programs

Across the province, concerned Albertans are charting a new direction for supporting children and their families. You can help in your community by reaching out to children at risk before a crisis occurs. The Alberta Government has set aside $50 million over three years to fund early intervention programs for children from birth to 18 years of age. Half of these funds are designated for programs that deal specifically with Aboriginal children, as nearly half the children in care are Aboriginal.

Early intervention programs can take many forms ranging from pre-natal nutritional guidance to pregnant mothers, to offering peer support, healing circles or elders counselling to troubled teens. If you are an individual or a non-profit community organization with an idea for an early intervention program you may be eligible for funding.

From the school board

by Janice Harrington
Review Editor

Senior administrative appointments have been finalized by the Chinook's Edge Regional School Board.

Besides Dr. Altha Neilson, appointed as School Superintendent in January, six other central office administrators have now been added to the staff.

Appointed are: Jim Moreau, Wayne Poncia, Darlene Hayes and Bill Hoppins, formerly of the County of Red Deer School Board and Warren Phillips and Ken Brown, formerly of the County of Mountain View School Board.

Dr. Peter Darby, deputy superintendent for Red Deer County was named as the new regional deputy superintendent. He replaces Shirley Van Eaton who was hired in January but later choose to leave her position.

Wayne Poncia said the school board is not planning any layoffs as a result of the amalgamation and is looking at hiring new teaching staff this fall.

"Anyone who was displaced under the amalgamation, we have found different positions for. With the number of retirements, transfers and teachers leaving and the change from at 19 to 1 pupil/teacher ratio to 18 to 1, we are looking at perhaps hiring this fall."

Chinook's Edge students attending schools outside the region will no longer be getting a free ride.

Chinook's Edge School board voted last week to start charging students $150 per semester ($300 per year) if they take a Chinook's Edge bus to help them reach their schools in other jurisdictions. With former Red Deer County school so close to City of Red Deer school, this situation has arisen often in the past.

And while the former school board was not to let the situation be, changes in transportation funding from the province means school board won't get any money for bus-ing students unless they attend schools within its boundaries.

Whether or not foreign students can attend Chinook's Edge schools for free will now depend on each school.

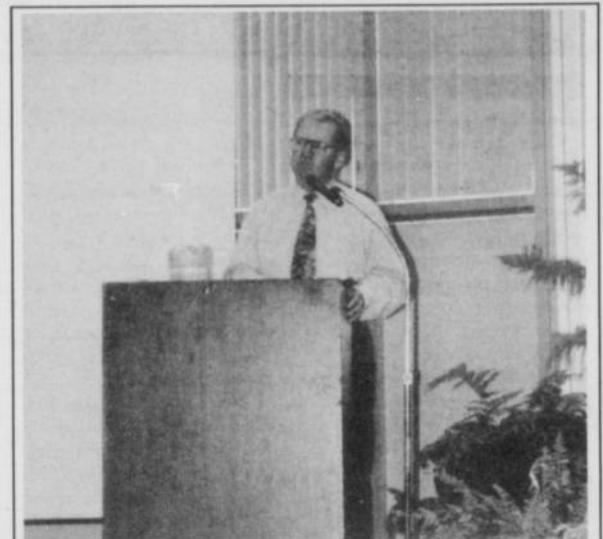

The School Board has adopted a new policy which states school principals have the discretion to waive the tuition fees for visiting foreign students. In the County of Mountain View, the school board also charged foreign students but left 10 free openings available for students deserving the break.

But Deputy Superintendent Peter Darby said the move to school based management meant many schools would not want to reduce their budgets by allowing some student to attend for free.

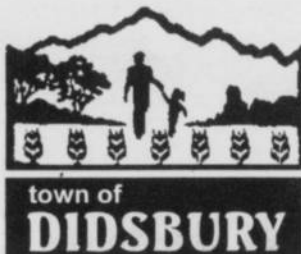

"This policy then allows for discretion from the principal," he said.

Most school board trustees were

Help available for those 'dying to be thin'

by Elaine Wilson
Review writer

While financial cuts may place future programs in limbo, Didsbury Preventative Program Coordinator Lisa Lough hopes to continue bringing in speakers, support personnel and 'info-tainment' productions such as the recent play seen by Didsbury students entitled, 'Dying to be Thin' (presented by Vancouver's travelling Carousel Theatre Company).

Lough saw the play as one way to reach students battling personal self-image demons and open up the subject for discussion.

A 'silent disease', sufferers of eating disorders are, almost without exception, apprehensive about seeking help, as it would mean 'admitting' to 'shameful' behaviour.

Boys tend to lean toward physique-altering drugs (steroids) while girls all too often turn to bingeing and purging.

Lough said that while males and females tend to have disparate manners of reacting to social coercion to adhere to 'acceptable' body types, the damage can be equally ravaging.

Bulimics find themselves in a vicious 'Catch-22' situation. While fighting to maintain an 'attractive' weight through purging, the damage done to the stomach and throat caused by regurgitated acid also spreads to the gums, effectively ruining a pretty smile, causing yet more damage to an already precarious measure of self esteem.

Having seen a propensity toward low self esteem relating to body image anxieties in children as young as eight and nine years of age, Lough is not alone in championing a more open discussion climate to establish a starting point allowing pre-teens and young adults to successfully combat health-threatening diseases relating to self-image.

The play was partially covered by student council funds and budgeted amounts set aside before the F.C.C.S. program was re-aligned and it is hoped that programs viewed as crucial by those who see the value of preventative programming will find funding in future. The recent round of funding cuts to city hospitals has eliminated many programs formerly in place and private counselling fees can be exorbitant. However, help is available.

Students can start by approaching PPC's, like Lough, a trusted teacher or counsellor, or contact the Distress Centre with two main lines out of Calgary. The Teen Line, open from 5 p.m. to 11 p.m. is (403) 264-8336. The Drug Line, open from 5 p.m. to 11 p.m. is (403) 269-3784. The Calgary Family Service Bureau number is (403) 233-2370, but there is often a waiting list for their counselling service. Parents and children should note that the Distress Centre will provide up to six counselling sessions to ensure help is not delayed.

"Anorexics are difficult to help as they genuinely believe they do not have a problem (other than being too fat)", a handout from the Ministry of Health points out. In their case, intercession is imperative. Bulimics on the other hand, know they have a problem, but have great difficulty admitting it. They require plenty of support, reassurance and encouragement before they will accept help.

Suggestions for those unsure of how to proceed include researching eating disorders in order to understand the problem fully and finding professional help and/or a support group.

The determining validation that an eating disorder has progressed to the hazardous stage is reached when the disorder begins to rule the life of the person affected.

The good news, Lough said, is that even though the battle of fighting eating disorders is often daunting, the war can be won - with help from those experienced in these types of conditions.

Final touches. A member of the Didsbury Service Battalion 3025 Army Cadets took care of some finishing touches just before inspection at last week's annual inspection event held at the Memorial Complex. The cadet troop, serenaded by the joint army and air cadet band, was inspected by Didsbury Mayor Ray Lea. A reception at the Elks Hall followed the annual event. Photo courtesy Olds Albertan.

At the Kitchen Table

by Noreen Olson

It's about a year and a half since the last above ground bit of the old house was taken away and the foundation lay exposed. Because the well was within part of the foundation, that part had to be preserved and we built a lower deck over it. We hired a man with a hydraulic jackhammer to break up the cement foundations from under the "newer" portions but we didn't make any effort to remove the stonework that was under the original house. This area is about 12x12, six feet deep and open at the west end where it joined the basement in the newer portion. Ralph's dad hand built it with what must have been tremendous effort and from truly enormous stones.

What are we going to do about Grandpa's rock work, we kept asking ourselves and finally I called a professional landscape person to give us some ideas. I loved the plan, tiered decks, sandstone floor, junipers and vines and flowing lawn. More rock work and some raised flower beds but eliminate some of the old flower beds and simplify wherever possible. After all, we keep telling ourselves, we are getting older and we want to have things a bit easier to keep in our declining years. This may be a good time to cut back on the garden and truly I buy too many bedding plants. Simplify will be our watchword, easier is better, clean lines and minimal clutter.

Julien, Ralph's brother, came from Ottawa in early May and had scarcely unpacked before he was hauling rock for the floor. He fitted sandstone like giant jig-saw pieces and worked sand into the crevices. He scouted special rocks for the steps and attached chains to them so that Ralph would need to take minimal time from field work to pick them up with the loader. Steps formed from lovely, huge, flat stones led into the pit, flower beds climbed in tiers toward ground level. He made a bench seat with a back rail for the lower deck, stepping stones to the gazebo, a trellis for the Virginia creeper to climb on and one for the scarlet runner beans. He rescued Grandma's daffodils, almost lost at the edge of a destroyed foundation and moved heliopsis from the centre of what will be new lawn. He hauled fresh earth for my nasturtium planters and removed the old stump from the east flower bed. In a spare moment he planted the 50 willows that will form our new windbreak. It is not all exactly according to the plan but it's close enough and it's lovely and maybe, most important, it's done. Now it was Ralph's and my turn.

The lovely new flower beds were going to need a lot of bedding plants and since I was not ready to eliminate the old beds, we had to double the usual petunia order. Well, the old beds are full of important things and until we set up our new low maintenance peony border I couldn't very well just ignore the old beds could I? Something would have to go in where the old stump had been because the delphinium needs something to lean against and tie to in a storm. The raised beds under the spruce tree are too shaded for anything but impatiens and it seemed easier to plant them then to haul them away. My sister-in-law Marie had gone to a great deal of trouble to start tomatoes and geraniums and 15 miniature dahlias for the sunny east bed and I really like borders of alyssum and lobelia and look, I started all these sedums from cuttings and I certainly don't want them going to waste. I also don't like the exposed, scruffy way the ground under the big spruce looks and so we cut a swath with the rot-tiller and planted the Marvel of Peru seedlings Darlene Hallett gave me and a row of candytuft and African daisies.

We have planted and planted and planted. We have more flower beds than ever, the garden is just as big as it ever was and truly, truly there are a lot of steps out there for people who were planning for their declining years.

South-West Didsbury news

by Bessie Eckstrand
Special to the Review

Sympathy of the area is extended to the Dave Janzen family as mother and grandmother Rena passed away June 7th in the Didsbury Health Care Center, at the age of 83 years. A family funeral was held on Friday, June 9th at the Didsbury Mountain View Funeral Home.

Rena (Honey) Janzen grew up in the west country, married Dave Janzen, raised a family and moved to town where Rena worked at the Didsbury Hospital for many years until arthritis forced her to quit. She was a member of Knox United Church, served on the board for a number of years, worked at the Thrift Shop and was active in politics when Bob Clark was M.L.A. She was a resident in the Didsbury Hospital for 10 years. She was predeceased by Husband Dave in 1989. Rena was a lovely, gentle and generous lady, enjoyed visiting with friends and coffee was always close at hand. She will be sadly missed by her family and friends.

Westcott residents said goodbye to their United Church on Saturday, May 27th. It was moved to a sight two miles south of Madden and will be used as a bird hospital. It was sad to see it leave and will make a big loss to the community. It hadn't been used for several years but still that feeling of worship stayed with the community. The present Church was built in 1948 after the former Church was destroyed by fire in 1946. The former Church was built in 1902 at a cost of $162. (which were donations from the area residents). The first minister was a student, D.J.S. Ferguson stationed in Carstairs. Despite the Church having been moved, memories will remain in our minds of worship services, weddings, funerals, baptisms, Sunday School, picnics, suppers and of the ministers who served the charge.

We received two and a half inches of rain June 6th which was very welcome and really soaked up the grass fields and crop land and everything looks so nice, I hope no one had frost last week.

A couple from Florida who stayed overnight in Didsbury Park and attended services at Knox United remarked on how beautiful it was around Didsbury. They could hardly believe their eyes and didn't realize that Canada was such a beautiful place.

Henry Petkau Retiring Westglen principal

After five years as principal of Westglen school and over three decades of teaching experience, Henry Petkau will be retiring as of June 30. Petkau credits the principal of the school he attended from grades one to 12 with his career choice and indeed with the direction his life eventually took. Hometown Vauxhall principal Ralph Ringdahl saw something bright in Petkau's future he never dismissed, even after Petkau quit school in an early high school term. Petkau said Ringdahl drove out to the Petkau family residence ("and it was on a Saturday, too,") where the future Westglen principal was taking up his new career in farming and convinced him to give school another try. "He made a major difference in my life," Petkau said. At 56, Petkau is interested in exploring the possibilities of beginning a new career upon retiring from an active teaching role, possibly in a consulting position relating to education. "I think I need a change," Petkau said. "I think it's important not to wait [to retire] until you feel you're wanted out." He said he "would not be presumptuous enough to offer his successor (Phil Coming, previously employed as principal at Hugh Sutherland School in Carstairs) any advice at all", but wished him well and noted, "He's got a really good school" [in Westglen]. Petkau also expressed sincere appreciation for suggestions and help offered over the years by the school board, Westglen staff and community members at large.

Harriet Lauritsen Royal Purple recipient

Last Wednesday was Royal Purple Day in Canada and chairperson Irene Dickau, along with co-chair Annie Pringle, brought a little 'purple' into the lives of hospital and nursing home residents. The festivities began with a game of bingo in the lounge, followed by a sing-a-long and a visit from the Ladies of the Royal Purple who passed out ice cream cones. Purple pansies and violets were given to prize-winners and to those having birthdays in June. There was no word on how much ice cream the ladies went through, but the recipients appeared to have enjoyed their visit immensely.

Elwood Whittleton

'The Great Dinosaur Race' board game.

The May release of 'The Great Dinosaur Race', a clever new board game designed and marketed by Elwood Whittleton of Didsbury, means kids of all ages now have fresh means to brighten quiet summer days spent indoors. Those familiar with his 1994 edition, 'The Rodeo Game', will notice a host of refinements this time out including enhanced custom graphics and a vivid color layout. Whittleton said he learned a lot from his first attempt, which culminated in a 'break-even' entry into the world of game design and marketing. His advice to others pondering a similar path is to connect with professionals in supply and design. "And they should find someone like Henry [Hama] who can draw," Whittleton added. Whittleton elected to incorporate dinosaurs into the game design after exhaustive research (including consultations with Royal Tyrell Museum representatives who stock the game on site) concluded the concept would sell. Currently making the rounds at Toronto's prestigious Toy Fair, The Great Dinosaur Race is potentially poised on a possible national break through. Whittleton trusts the profusion of computer driven animated games on the market won't curb the success of his colorful new addition to the board game world. After all, another Canadian commodity known as 'Trivial Pursuit' continues to sell in record numbers in toy stores across North America. However, he declined to speculate on the game's ultimate prospects at this early date. "I don't get excited," Whittleton said. "It's too early to tell. I'm taking this one step at a time."

Robert Wigg

Weeding out the offenders

By-law number 84-10 dealing with regulation of 'unsightly premises' is implemented "typically on a complaint basis only", Didsbury by-law enforcement officer Robert Wigg said. The by-law states that an owner, lessee, tenant or agent of the owner shall be responsible to cut the grass on grounds and on boulevard adjoining the owner's property and to cut back dandelions, crab and quack grass and other weeds on same. Upon receiving a complaint, the town will issue a notice to the owner, who is given 12 days to correct the problem. If no action is taken by the owner, the town may then cut the grass and/or weeds and charge the cost of the work done against the property as taxes due and owing and collecting it as such. There are no exemptions to the unsightly premises by-law, Wigg said, advising that town-owned property is subject to identical appraisal, with cutting notices issued when deemed necessary. While Wigg said he's received feedback contesting the need for a complaint to be filed before action is taken he said, "Legally, I need a complaint statement and if the person I'm dealing with wants to know who complained, legally I have to give them that name. There are probably 15 or 20 weed notices out right now; most people will likely comply. My policy is after 12 days to move in and cut the grass. I will probably be using a private company to do that as opposed to town forces. I can use either, but the fact of the matter is that right now, town forces are pretty busy." Wigg suggested absentee owners and residents heading out on holidays should make yard care arrangements, adding that common sense and a 'good neighbor' policy would serve to alleviate the situation. "If somebody's grass got a little out of hand over the weekend or while they were on holidays, that's not what we're after. I'm here to enforce the by-laws. I take my job very seriously and I try to do my job well. But I should be involved as a last resort, not used in neighbor's disputes. I don't think town council or the taxpayers want by-law enforcement with 'a heavy fist'. Most of these things can be resolved with some communication and a little bit of common sense."

Catherine Allen - Japanese art display

The collection of Japanese artwork currently on display in the Municipal Library came as a gift in 1994 from Mr. Atsutaka Kita, chairman of the Oyama International Friendship Association. Arrangements were made by the Town of Didsbury to have the artwork framed and put on display. It is hoped that the art collection will find a permanent home in the schools, museum, town office, train station and/or other suitable publicly accessible locations when the current display is dismantled. Oyama, proposed as a Japanese 'twin' for Didsbury, hosts an English speech contest on an annual basis, granting the winners a chance to visit Didsbury and surrounding area. Local artists, including Ruth Jepson, Pam Yule-Charles, Henry Hama, Anna Beth Craig and Joyce Mullen, have played an ongoing role in the exchange of art, ideas and students. Spokesperson Catherine Allen considers exchange programs valuable global connections serving to broaden the scope and understanding of different cultures and ideas. Mr. Kita will be returning to Didsbury in the latter part of June with three students from Oyama; Yosuke Uehata, Kayoko Iwata and Naoko Sakano. Those interested in hosting future visitors or in arranging for students from Didsbury to visit Oyama may contact Allen at 335-8143.

Cam Campbell

Teen Active Program at DAC

Shift supervisor Cam Campbell is organizing a first time event dubbed 'Teen Active!' tomorrow (June 14) from 9 to 10:30 p.m. Teens from 13 to 17 are invited to join in the fun. The door fee is $2.50, but for those bringing a friend, the second teen will get in for half price. Campbell promises an action packed evening with contests, games and prizes galore. While Campbell couldn't confirm the species of the mammoth inflated water toy booked for the event, he narrowed it down to either a sea serpent or a time-honored favorite - the giant water dog. "It's a way to celebrate that school's out before it actually happens," Campbell said. "It's a tension reliever. It gives the kids a chance to get away from their books for a night and have a little fun." The 'Teen Active!' program is one of several events planned as part of the summer action regime at DAC. More information can be obtained by calling the aquatic centre at 335-8653.

Didsbury gets first fast food chain

by Janice Harrington
Review Editor

Didsbury's first foray into fast food franchises will open this week with the opening of the new Subway in the recently constructed Super 8 Motel complex.

Part of the second largest franchise in North America, Didsbury's Subway is the third franchise for owners Dan and Regena Merkley.

The Merkleys, who also own Subway franchises in Innisfail and Sylvan Lake, are excited about the opportunity to offer Subway's own style of fast food the public in the area.

"Besides the fresh subs, we will also have soups, salads, muffins, really promoting health but not just in food," Dan Merkley said. "The company also really promotes community involvement in philosophy and commitment and we are really looking forward to being part of the community."

Part of the way the Merkleys are showing their community spirit was evident in a free sub and drink giveaway during their grand opening Monday night. From 4 to 7 pm, Subway handed out free 6 inch subs and drinks for everyone who lined up for the treat. The Merkleys have also been supporting minor ball and handed out free sub sandwiches during the Midget minor ball tournament held in Didsbury June 9 and 10.

The Merkleys chose Didsbury as the location for their third store after scouting locations for a possible expansion.

"We thought this would be a great town to open a store and then we were approached by the Super 8. It just grew from there and so far, we have had a very positive response."

The Subway, which opened Monday, will be open 8am to 12pm Monday through Thursday, 8am to 1am Friday and Saturday and 10am to 10pm on Sundays.

Fast food foray. Dan Merkley, along with his wife Regena, opened up their new Subway store in Didsbury Monday offering a free meal for local residents who took the time to line up. The Merkleys are looking forward to working with the community, a philosophy they say, their franchise company promotes. Janice Harrington photo

Main Street Coordinator hired

by Janice Harrington
Review Editor

A coordinator who will manage funds and projects for the Didsbury Main Street program has been hired.

Dave Mohr, former Main Street coordinator from Westaskiwin, began his new job in Didsbury last week.

The Main Street program is a provincially funded program which helps town's restore the former glory of their downtown core. Didsbury was accepted into the program this year after three years of applying.

Funds will be available for business to use to restore the store fronts.

Mohr will be working out of the Westerdale Building and can be reached by calling the town office at 335-3391.

Another milestone. The first Hydump silage wagon rolled off the assembly line at Kuelker's Manufacturing 11 years ago and last week, Monday morning, #3000 rolled off that same line. The model is the smallest of three available which Kuelker's supplies across North America. Elaine Wilson photo

Medal ceremonies for Saturday competition will be held from 12 to 1pm and from 6 to 7pm at the gazebo. Special guests, including RDTV's Bill Black and CFCN sportscasters will be on hand to hand out the medals.

Sunday will also begin with a 7 am pancake breakfast, sponsored by the Didsbury Aquajets, who are holding their annual swim meet in conjunction with the games over the weekend. An interdenominational service is planned at the multi-purpose room at 9am, kicking off another day of historical tours and more of the craft show and sale. Sunday's medal ceremonies will also take place at the gazebo at 1pm and a final medal presentation will be held in the Memorial Complex at 5pm.

More outdoor entertainment is planned for Sunday. At the gazebo, country and western band Out West will entertain along with Kerry Ann Paulson and Dance Elite. At the DAC deck, shows will be performed by the Ukrainian dancers, Brenda Cipperly and the 5-0 Singers. Other outdoor entertainment is being lined up and will be confirmed later this week.

Closing ceremonies for the games will take place at the Memorial Complex at 5pm.

To gain entry to each venue, spectators must have on a BCSG button. Buttons are available for $3 at various places in town and at the opening ceremonies.

640 - IN MEMORIAM

In Loving memory of James M. Hooper who passed away June 12, 1994. Our faithful shepherd leads His sheep Beside the waters clear; In times of sorrow and great need His rod and staff are near. God's love and mercy freely flow When human strength grows frail; So may you ever rest and know His goodness will not fail. "Yea, though I walk through the valley..."

I will fear no evil: for thou art with me." Psalm 23:4

Sadly missed, forever remembered by wife Mary, children and Grandchildren.

Time To Regroup

Okay, you cheated! Someone brought baking to work and you lost control. Then, you were so upset with yourself that you went out for a big order of greasy fish and chips. Shame and disappointment drove you to keep snacking all evening. That binge stopped your weight loss momentum, made you feel guilty, and possibly set your program back a few days. But don't let it completely derail your plans. Just acknowledge the fact that you made a mistake, reset your goal and get back on track immediately. Bet you'll think twice before bingeing again!

The way of life

What's in a storm?

For a moment, let your mind drift beyond the rolling hills of Alberta to the mountainous region of Galilee, circa 25 A.D. Glancing out of your door, you see dust blowing and feel goosebumps on your arm as the wind cools. Deciding you would like to hear a local weather report you flip on the radio to station TUNES 98.6 (motto: "Bringing you into the first century with hits from yesterday and today"). As the last notes from your favorite harp and lyre quartet fade out, you hear the weatherman cut in:

"... a severe storm warning has been issued for the Sea of Galilee. Fishing vessels are advised to use extreme caution. Many vessels have already capsized." As this news begins to sink in, he comes back with "This just in! All boats on the Sea of Galilee are now instructed to return to shore until further notice. The storm is too great to survive! Sounds serious. You hope that nobody you know is out on the water. The weather reporter cuts back in, this time with an edge of panic to his voice. "We have just received word that a boat carrying several disciples and the Master himself, is still out there on the turbulent waters. We have tried to contact the vessel to advise them of the danger they're in, but all efforts thus far have been unsuccessful. We'll keep you posted."

The Master?! It couldn't be...but he said it was...could it really be the Great Teacher that everyone has been talking about? Apparently he's the Son of God!! He wanders about performing miracles, healing the sick and teaching about God. It's hard to believe that this great man could be lost forever. And you had so much hoped to meet him. Oh well, you can forget about that because nobody could handle a storm like this.

The radio is crackling now as you move to close the door, trying to keep out some of the dust and rain. The heaviness of your heart begins to lift as you hear the weatherman say, "several witnesses have now reported that they saw this man Jesus stand up in the boat and say three words, 'Peace, be still'. Our researchers are checking this out now to see what the significance of these three words might be. We'll let you know just as soon as..." Could it be that the Master has a plan? Does he know something you don't know? You turn up the volume on the radio, noticing that the goosebumps on your arm are disappearing and less wind is blowing through the cracks of your house. "We have just had an amazing turn of events! The storm which threatened the safety of all those on the Sea of Galilee is over! The winds have died down and the sea is calm once again. Our storm warning is lifted and the sea is safe for all vessels."

Turning off the radio you consider the significance of what you heard. A deadly storm was calmed by the gentle words of Jesus. Yes, you decide, you must meet this man who can handle even the greatest crisis. It seems that a storm is only a storm until Jesus steps on the scene.

SHEARER

John Shearer was born August 26, 1915 in Scotland to Mr. & Mrs. Given Weir Shearer, an only son with four sisters. He received his schooling in Scotland, ran many errands for people and played football. After school he would take his pick, shovel and pail and dig in the deposits from the coalmines on his grandfather's farm, for pieces of coal to take home for his mother.

In 1929 the family came to Canada through the Empire settlers scheme to a farm eleven miles southwest of Carstairs in the Madden area. There he continued with his football career.

His father, sisters, Martha and Agnes, and he were employed quite readily. Mother, Annie and Peggy were home, the girls going to Banner school.

John met Freda Casebeer through Martha's friendship. In 1937 they were married. The following year, son Gavin was born.

In 1940 John enlisted in the army going overseas in February of 1941 returning October 1945. The family moved to the farm in 1946 returning to the town of Carstairs in 1956 when the farm was sold. John was employed at the Feed Mill for 15 years when he had an accident and could not work for two years.

John then sold his home and went to Victoria for nine months returning to Carstairs and was em-

Special to the Review

Steve Bell will be appearing in concert at the North Zion Evangelical Missionary Church, 2026 - 21 Ave., on Wednesday, June 21st at 7:30 pm. There is no admission charge but a free-will offering will be taken.

Steve Bell began travelling and singing with his father's Stony Mountain Gospel Band at age nine. Competitors still needed for BCSG

by Janice Harrington
Review Editor

While team sports registration has closed for the upcoming Big Country Summer Games, spaces are still open for those who would like to compete in individual events.

Games Manager Laura Silbernagel said space is still open and organizers are hoping for more participation in events like the triathlon, two on two basketball, outdoor volleyball and other individual sporting events.

"We had to close registration in the team events because of (logistics)," Silbernagel said, "but we still have lots of room to fill in other areas."

Qualifying events for the Alberta Summer Games are limited to teens, but host events can include everyone. For more information, contact the Big Country Summer Games office at 335-8730.

Diamonds are forever. Didsbury slo-pitch players (represented by Sharon Fulkerth - Krazy Eights, Lucy Mackenzie - Panthers, George Maxwell - Fogduckers, Tracy Smith - Whisky Jacks and John Metcalf - Haybusters) annually spare their time to help clean up and maintain local ball diamonds. This year they raised $2000 for the job, $1200 of which was refunded by the Big Country Summer Games Committee. The players plan to use their extra windfall to expand on improvements and maintenance. Elaine Wilson photo

Plans firmed for Canada Day celebration

Special to the Review

The Didsbury Interagency Group, along with all the major community groups in town are planning to make this a July 1 holiday to remember.

With various activities planned for the whole family, everyone will be having fun during the event.

The Didsbury Radio Control Fun Flyers will once again operate their annual fun fly at their field northwest of town. Radio control aircraft of all shapes and sizes will take to the air from 1 to 4pm.

A contest for the longest drive and the longest putt will be held at the Didsbury golf Club, with prizes to be awarded. The Didsbury Lawn bowling Club is planning a demonstration of their sport and the Didsbury Aquatic Centre is planning a pool full of games to keep the community refreshed and entertained.

A silent auction will be held by the Didsbury Figure Skating Club from 1 to 8:30 pm and from 4 to 6 pm, a bike decorating contest will celebrate the best in creativity. Both events will be held at the gazebo.

For strollers, the ambulance service, fire department and police department have been asked to display their vehicles along the streets of the downtown, which will be closed to regular traffic for the day.

Stores and businesses are being asked to display flags along with poster contest entries from the schools. Winners of the contest will be chosen by the Didsbury Elks.

For hungry celebrants, there will be a barbeque sponsored by the Lions Club, a watermelon booth from the Sparks, pie and coffee from Victims of Family Violence and popcorn and lemonade from the Historical Society.

Face painting, midway events (including a dunk tank), clowns, balloons and a petting zoo will round out the day long activities.

A stage show is planned for 7pm which is when the prizes will be handed out and local talent will be highlighted. The day will wrap up with the fireworks display at the Westglen field.

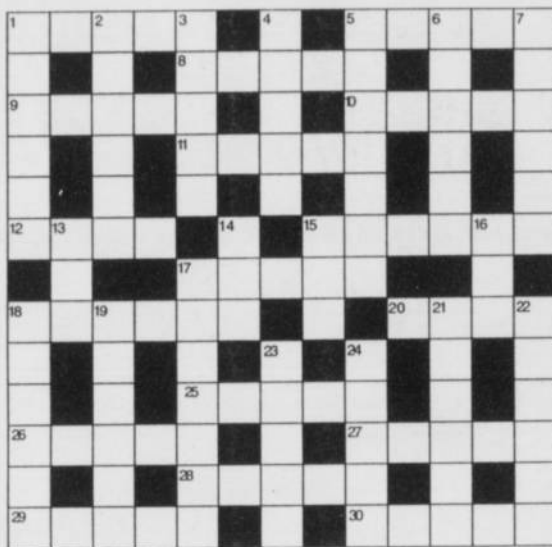

In order to pay for the celebrations, the Canada Day committee is planning a huge community garage sale to be held at the Pengary House on June 24. Donations to the effort can be picked up by calling Penny and Gary at 335-8353 or Grant at 335-3909.

Vitamin "R"

Running is for some folks the top leg of summer fun, Nobody understands it but you know if you are one. The signs of runner fever start with thoughts of roads and trails, A fresh air aspirin for life's headaches, there when all else fails. Doesn't take a lot of money, time or fancy clothes, Some running shoes, a favorite shirt and out the door he goes. For every person there's one thing that brings pure joy alive, For runners, it is running, which ignites a heart high five. No question that for some to run belongs up on the shelf, But for a very certain breed, to run, is life itself.

to write a letter to the Education Minister expressing their concern. Quaife said she was pleased by the support of the board and plans to continue her fight to have IOP students exempted from departmentals.

"I think they should develop an appropriate test to put into place for IOP students across the province," she said. "But in the meantime, I am not going to allow my daughter to write the (departmental) exam. "I feel bad because getting that zero will bring down the average for the school but I need to think about my daughter."

CANADA'S INTERNATIONAL IMMUNIZATION PROGRAMHELPING CHILDREN BEAT THE ODDS

Canada is an important partner in the global effort to help children in the developing world beat the odds against six deadly, but preventable, diseases — measles, polio, tuberculosis, tetanus, whooping cough and diphtheria.

Through the worldwide initiative, more than three million young lives are saved each year. Despite this encouraging statistic, nearly two million children a year still die for lack of immunization. The odds can be beaten with your help.
